THE WAR SITUATION

London, December 14.—It seems that the Japanese on 203-Metre Hill are "inexpugnable" to Russian assaults. The desperation of the assaults by which the Russians have endeavored to retake this position corresponds to the desperation which the Japanese have shown in assaulting it. And quite naturally. For it is not denied that the holding of this position by the besiegers renders Port Arthur untenable and condemns the Russian ships there to a fire which they cannot escape, and to which they cannot effectively reply. They must go out to confront a superior force or be sunk at their moorings. And the position of the line by the Japanese moreover adds so greatly to the difficulty of the defenders that it seems to be agreed that its undisturbed possession means the downfall of the fortress.

While this seems to be true, it also seems to be true that the attack upon Port Arthur, as it has been conducted, has been the chief military failure of the Japanese campaign. Port Arthur may be said to have been cut off from any rescue by land ever since the battle of Nanshan Hill last May, having been previously cut off by sea in the sea fights in which the Japanese were shown to be superior to the Russians afloat in those waters. What was indicated by the circumstances seems to have been the slow processes of besieging, which will a besieging force abundant in numbers, easily and without fear of interruption, supplied from its own bases, and capable of encompassing the garrison and putting upon it a gradually increasing and at last irresistible pressure. But the impatient Japanese seem to have rejected this process as too slow. They were anxious to release the investing force at the earliest moment to join the assailants of General Kuropatkin to the northward. Accordingly they made a series of assaults, bloody and desperate as any recorded in history, upon works virtually intact, manned by a garrison of unshakable valor and determination, led and inspired by a heroic commander. It seems to be the general judgment of military men that the besiegers had committed themselves with the slower and less sensational methods of regular approach, preparing for one final assault only when all the conditions should have become favorable to it, the siege of Port Arthur would have been at least as far advanced as it is now and the Japanese would have found available for the relief of their southern army, when the siege terminated, an incomputable number, apparently not less than fifty thousand, of brave and disciplined soldiers whom they have now sacrificed in their impatience to reach the goal of their endeavors.

This is, of course, a capital consideration. For the exigency of the besiegers is to release their besieging force, necessarily several times as great as that of the garrison, for service elsewhere. Kuropatkin seems now to be on terms of numerical equality with his opponents. The arrival of Gen. Nogi's force would at once restore to them a distinct numerical superiority. But the men whom it was hoped to release by the Japanese policy of repeated and desperate assaults are no longer in existence. They have been sacrificed. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that they have been wasted. And the moral as well as the physical advantage remains with the besieged. Every successful repulse of a gallant and desperate charge must encourage those who repel it and dishearten those who are repelled, and disdiscipline them to undertake another enterprise against such odds. If Gen. Stoezel had had the direction of his country's operations against him it is likely that he would have directed the same operations that have been had, in which he was able to inflict great loss at a cost comparatively small, and to improve the morale of his own troops while he lowered that of the enemy. Doubtless Port Arthur is near its fall. But it seems that its fall is no nearer than if the Japanese had consented to make haste slowly, while the prize, when they get it, will have been won at a needless expense of Japanese lives.

THE GREAT SCANDAL

The report that Mr. Blair's resignation from the railway commission was part of a conspiracy of the most comprehensive and far-reaching character to defeat the Government at the recent general elections by an association of persons at present unknown, except through their spokesman, one David Russell, is thus alluded to by the Montreal Witness:

"That Mr. Russell induced Mr. Blair to resign at a time when it would do the Government the most harm, that Mr. Russell had purchased newspapers for the purpose of turning them against the Government; that, unbeknown to Mr. Blair, he announced in his St. John paper that Mr. Blair was going to take the stump against the Liberal Government within four and twenty hours. We know also from Mr. Emerson that Mr. Russell spent money like water to influence the New Brunswick elections; we know from Senator Dandurand that a contingent concession had been arranged to meet Mr. Blair in Montreal; we know that Mr. Blair had no intention to re-enter public life except to reassert his objections to the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme because he told us so. We know that robbing was threatened on the eve of the elections, and we know that Sir Wilfrid Laurier invited his enemies to fire off their blunderbusses at the earliest opportunity."

"This is about all we really know, but there is smoke enough to indicate that there was a fire of some sort somewhere. According to Mr. Russell Mr. Blair was an innocent puppet all through, which is a new role for him. Mr. Blair, however, plays it very well when he touchingly tells the public how little importance he attached at the time to his resignation, and how he was justified by the little stir it made. As for Mr. Russell, he again assures us that his own welfare will be made at the proper time and place; that all the facts concerned in the matters that have been causing such a commotion will soon become public property, as they will probably be proven under oath in the courts."

"Let us hope so."

The allegations, which appeared first in Le Nationaliste, a small French paper in Montreal, at the time the resignation took place, have been repeated since the elections by the Montreal Herald, the Toronto World, and other papers, and are attracting more and more attention from day to day as the known facts and actual results are fitted together with what was first appeared to be wild assertions.

Briefly, the story is that Mr. Blair associated himself through David Russell with a group of unknown capitalists, with a view of overturning the Government as a means of securing for them the construction of a transcontinental railway on more favorable terms than those accorded to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

As a preliminary, the Montreal Star and Le Presse, the two papers having the largest circulations in Canada were to be purchased at prices running over a million dollars each, and the arrangements were actually made. Money was to be provided to buy off a number of Liberal candidates in the provinces of Quebec, so that those candidates should go Conservative by proclamation. Fitzpatrick, MacIntyre, and Sifton, Ministers of Justice, Marine and Interior respectively were to be bribed by a gift of $100,000 each to leave the Government, or if the bribe were refused, were to be arrested just before nomination on charges to be provided. Blair was to resign from the railway commission and take the stump against the Government. It was fully believed that with all these startling events the defeat of the Government could be secured before the public could possibly know how the case really stood. Blair actually did resign, but for what reason has not yet appeared.

The negotiations for the purchase of Le Presse and the Star were entered into. That much is established. It was at this point that Le Nationaliste published the facts. The exposure of the scheme and the failure to find either the members of the Government mentioned, or the Liberal candidates in Quebec as reliable as they were expected to have been, caused the failure of the plot, the Government received its immense majority. Mr. Blair was left high and dry without any reasonable or creditable explanation to give as to why he resigned from the position and responsibility that he had so recently accepted, and the interested public are still guessing.

THE PROVINCIAL POSITION

During the recent federal elections Premier McBride, of British Columbia, in discussing political questions, used the following language in regard to better terms for the province:

"The province has no legal claim upon the Dominion. It has been deprived of all rights. Whether a Liberal Government or a Conservative Government be in power, in this province, no claim for the recognition of rights can be advanced. The Federal Government may be approached and requested to consider our case, compare our position with the condition of other provinces, and to act in accordance with the facts disclosed if it sees fit."

This sets out clearly the fact that the provincial condition is essentially a fixed condition, and that once provincial standing has been attained, better terms become entirely a matter of grace, and not of right. As the Territories now are, we secure an increase of grant proportionate to increase of population as a matter of right, and not as an act of grace.

AS TO TELEPHONES

Mr. J. E. Bull, of Calgary, western manager of the Bell Telephone Company's system came in on last night's train, and will spend a few days in the city.

Interviewed as to the purpose of his visit here Mr. Bull said it was in fulfilment of a promise made by the president of the company, when in Edmonton in September, that should the city purchase the local system and desire to standardize it, the company would be willing to place at the city's disposal gratis their experience and ability of their engineering department. Mr. Bull said that a misapprehension had arisen as to the attitude of the Bell Company towards the local system. The company did not wish, and never had wished to enter Edmonton in competition with the local system. They had no hostility towards it, and my intention of bringing on a fight by going into competition with the local system. The general policy of the Bell Company was to protect their own vested interests, but they did not wish to enter into a field already occupied.

With reference to the vote to be taken on Monday by the by-law to raise money to purchase the local system, and operate it as a municipal enterprise Mr. Bull said that the Bell Company had no sides in the matter. They did not wish to enter the field, but would like to see the system standardized so that direct communication could be had from any local phone to any similar phone in any other town on the company's lines.

According to the new city charter the first meeting of the recently elected city council for 1905 will be held on Monday evening, January 2. This is the first Monday in January. Provided this day falls on a holiday, its meeting will be held on the evening of the first day following the holiday. The new council will then decide on future meetings, how often they are to be held and on what evenings.

The council now in office will continue to meet Tuesday evenings, until the first meeting of the new council.

The new council will be Mayor K. W. McKenzie, Aldermen Chas. May, J. R. Boyle, K. A. McLeod, Thos. Bellamy, W. H. Clarke, J. H. Picard, D. R. Fraser and W. A. Griesbach.

THE PLAY

"The Irish Immigrant" was the play presented by the Marks' Company last night and it was greeted with a crowded house. The play was a mixture of tragedy and comedy and was not at all of the character that its title would suggest. It would have to be seen to be appreciated. The specialties were as good as ever, which is saying a great deal.

To-night's play is "A Soldier of France," and to-morrow's matinee "The Little Minister."

RAILWAY RATES

A recent issue of the Canada Gazette contained tables of the railway rates authorized to be charged on the railways of Canada. These rates are higher than are now charged by the railways, and their publication caused some adverse comment based on the supposition that the railway commission had authorized the higher rates. On account of this comment the railway commission issued the following statement:

The railway commission has not approved or authorized any increase in the passenger tolls of any of the railways. What it has done is to authorize the continuance by the railways of their present minimum tolls and their publication in the Canada Gazette, as required by the new railway Act. These minimum tolls were ordered by the board to be published by December 31 last, failing which publication the railways, under the act, could not legally collect any tolls whatever. The maximum tolls are referred to in the act as the standard passenger tariff, and these were approved by the governor in council when they were first promulgated. The working tariff referred to in the act as the special passenger tariff has not been changed. This tariff represents the reduced rates, brought about by competition or any other cause, which are actually charged by railways. The act does not require the publication of these rates in the Canada Gazette, but they cannot be advanced without notice to the commission, which has the power to disallow any such advance. Should investigation show that the maximum or any tolls approved by the board are excessive, the board has the power to rescind, change or vary its approval at any time or on application.

Morgan and the C. N. R.

The rumor that gained circulation a few days ago to the effect that the Canadian Northern railway was about to pass into the hands of J. Pierpont Morgan, had its origin it appears, from the fact that a confidential agent of the great financier recently made a trip over the road for the purpose of inquiring into its condition and prospects. The investigations were made at the instance of Mr. Morgan, who, it is understood, will purchase a big block of the company's bonds as a result of the agent's report, which was of the most satisfactory nature.

Mr. Morgan's connection with the financial interests of the Canadian Northern at this juncture is of immense importance and will doubtless enable the company to continue construction operations with greater vigor than ever, and it is not impossible that the consolidation of the eastern and western lines under the one name and charter is the immediate outcome of the negotiations with him.

A gentleman closely connected with Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann says that they have no intention of selling out their road as they have an ambition to be great railroad operators as well as railroad builders, and are fully satisfied with the success that has attended their enterprises so far.

They are now determined to make the Canadian Northern a transcontinental line, and also to have a seaport terminus on Hudson's Bay, being thoroughly convinced of the feasibility of the northern route for modern steamships. The line to Hudson's Bay will probably be built before the eastern and western sections have been completed, it being their present intention to build to the bay from a point near Erwood as soon as the Edmonton and Prince Albert lines are in operation. This will give connection with the seaport system in Manitoba and the Territories. The opinion is freely expressed in some quarters that Premier Roblin's recent speech at Hamiota was delivered as a preliminary feeler on this on this object, the plan in view being to secure the co-operation and aid of the Western provinces, when they have been granted autonomy, in carrying out the work. Should the boundaries of Manitoba be extended to Hudson's Bay, the Manitoba government would doubtless manifest a greater interest than ever in the scheme of a railroad to Churchill or Port Nelson.

Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann are now engaged perfecting plans for next season's construction operations which will be the most active in the history of the company. They have a great amount of work to do in perfecting on lines now being operated, in addition to the completion of the several new lines now under way.

Canadian Trade Conditions

Referring to trade conditions in Canada Bradstreet's says:—

Irregularity in some Canadian trade reports is attributed largely to varying conditions of country roads. Wholesale trade is of fairly satisfactory volume and the outlook as a whole is favorable. In Quebec demand from country tradesmen is so brisk, in Ontario demand and collections improved. Wholesale trade is of fairly satisfactory volume for the season. Holiday goods have sold well in all sections. Relatively the best reports come from Manitoba, where American demand for wheat has helped trade collections. Ontario farmers' deliveries are freer, though wheat is lower. Implement men and jobbers note that many arrears are being discharged in Manitoba. The lumber and saloon industries are depressed in British Columbia, and collections are not up to expectations. General report is that there is plenty of money for holiday purchases throughout the Dominion. Failures for the week number 23, as against 26 last week and 7 in this week a year ago. Clearings aggregate $77,054,928, a gain of 11.6 per cent. over last week and of 23 per cent. over this week a year ago.

By-Elections

St. Johns, N. B., December 12.—By-elections for St. John City and county for the provincial legislature will likely take place on Dec. 30. The Liberals have called a convention for to-morrow. A. O. Skinner, for the city and J. G. Lowell for the county, are the likely Liberal candidates.

Will Not Interfere

New York, December 12.—A London despatch to the Times says that in response to the appeal of the international arbitration and peace association, Foreign Minister Lansdowne repeats that the British government is not aware of any circumstances that would justify it in modifying its previous decision not to interfere in the Russian-Japanese war.

Calgary's New Rink

Speaking of Calgary's new rink the Herald says:—

It is the largest and most modern building of the kind in the west, being 46 feet high, 200 by 90 feet in area and with an ice surface in the clear actually 170 by 77 feet. What is more to the point, there is not post in the entire interior and in all other respects the rink is an up-to-date affair. In dedicating the handsome edifice to the use of the public Mr. Irish proposes to see that everything that a polite and intelligent corps of assistants can do to accommodate the patrons will be supplied.

The building is rendered as light as day by eight great electric arc lights that are on a balcony containing three rows of seats for the spectators and large waiting rooms 31 by 19 feet, comfortably heated and appointed. For further convenience a refreshment stand will supply a light luncheon on a moment's notice.

The great circular roofed rink stands on the corner of Centre street and Sixteenth avenue, fronting the former thoroughfare. Complete toilet arrangements will be provided as soon as sewer connections are made. The band stand and two small hockey rooms upstairs complete the excellent appointments.

The rink will contribute substantially to the promotion of athletic events in the west, because it will be into sporting headquarters after the ice disappears. The new bowling alleys in the country will be installed, a shooting gallery, and the various implements and devices of athletic implements. The great bonspiel will be held at the Auditorium rink during Christmas week.

To Fight the Bell Company

Chicago, December 13.—Steps are to be taken at the convention of the Inter-state Independent Telephone Association, which begins here to-morrow, to defeat what is described in rumors as a combination which is said to be seeking to control the telephone appliance factories of the country.

President Barnard said last night that should the factories "Surrender to the Bell Telephone Company the Independents will turn out their own instruments."

Calgary Waterworks

Herald:

The city is face to face with a condition of affairs far more serious than electric lighting or any other question. Owing to an accident to the river works of the East Clare company, and the jamming of ice in the water supply has been practically cut off from the waterworks well. There is no use taking up time blaming anybody for the trouble. It is up to the council and prominent citizens to find a remedy for this most serious condition of affairs.

There are several things which could be done.

This morning a prominent banker suggested to the Herald that citizens should be notified that the water supply will be turned off, and that say two hours a day will be allowed for consumers to take water for the day. This might be done until the wells fill up again. Another suggestion is that the fire engine should be taken down and used for filling the well from the river. Chief Smart says that the no good as the trouble is that the intake is not deep enough to bring the water in.

The only permanent remedy is, of course, to build a standpipe and reservoir, but this will take time. If a serious fire occurred in the city now there would be danger of a wholesale conflagration because practically no water is available.

The condition is most alarming, one and calls for the earnest and immediate attention of all good citizens.

Lacombe Globe.—J. J. Sullivan and a gang of surveyors are surveying twenty-five miles more on the Lacombe branch. It is reported from very good authority that this line will be connected with the Prince Albert branch as soon as possible. Albert branch as soon as possible, as there is a large strip of good country on this route that is very valuable for ranching and mixed farming, which is not settled at all. May the good work go on.

—Revillon Bros. hockey team are out with challenge to all comers, date to be arranged by mutual agreement.

—The river is still open in several places in front of the city. Persons walking, driving or skating will do well to be careful, especially after dark.

—R. Ochser has again secured complete control of the Strathcona Brewing and Malting Company's premises plant and business, and will carry on the business as before.

—When the post office fittings are all in place there will be over eight hundred lock boxes. The new boxes that are being put in have combination locks, of the latest pattern, which does away with the need of keys.

—The ratepayers vote on Monday on the proposal to purchase the Edmonton District Telephone system and operate the same as a municipal enterprise. The vote will be the first taken under the new system introduced by the provisions of the city charter—the ratepayer being entitled to votes according to the amount of his assessment. An assessment of $599 or less, entitles to one vote; $600 to $1,199, to two votes; of $1,200 to $1,999, to three votes; of $2,000 or upwards, to four votes, the maximum under the new charter. A two-thirds majority is no longer necessary, a majority of the votes being all that is required.
